

Christian History Institute

Top Ten Quotes

from Charles H. Spurgeon

I believe every Christian man has a choice between being humble and being humbled.

There is more honor in being defeated in the truth than in a thousand victories gained by policy and falsehood.

Marriage was the last relic of paradise left among men, and Jesus hastened to honor it with his first miracle.

God in his providence and in grace, as far as we have been made willing to learn of him, is educating us for something higher than this world.

We are some of us too much in a hurry to go fast. If we were a little slower, we should be quicker.

Your Lord is very jealous of your love, O believer. Did He choose you? He cannot bear that you should choose another.

When we come to the end of self we come to the beginning of Christ.

Truth is never stronger than when it walks with charity.

God thinks of every separate child of His as much as if He had only that one.

There will be no doubt about His having chosen you, when you have chosen Him.