For most of that time my primary role has been Production Development Manager. That means I help develop Vision Video’s in-house productions and co-productions. This entails identifying projects that are a good fit for Vision Video and collaborating with our partners from the scripting stage on through the final edit of the program. One of the greatest joys of my job is the opportunity to come alongside producers and help them make our productions the best they can be. One of the most rewarding experiences I’ve had at Vision was working on the film, Until Forever (page 70.) When he came to us with the script, producer/director Michael Linn of Linn Productions already had an offer from another company to produce the film, but Michael wanted our input before moving ahead. I was so impressed by his openness to new ideas and his willingness to fine tune the script rather than rush into production. As a result, Linn Productions decided to partner with Vision Video for the project, and I believe that collaboration helped make Until Forever a more thoughtful and engaging film. It is so gratifying to see how this movie has become a best seller for Vision Video with millions of viewers having watched it, and more importantly seeing how the film is connecting with viewers and having an impact for God’s kingdom.

Vision Video prayerfully strives to produce and license high quality programs that tell authentic stories and exhibit creative integrity. Most importantly, we are committed to bringing you programs that tell God’s story through the stories of men and women who have experienced His grace and are making a difference in the world by following Christ.

Each of the ten half-hour episodes in Season One revolves around a topical issue such as adultery, revenge, greed, prejudice, and addiction, to name a few. The role of Detective Gary Travis is played by Todd Terry (Breaking Bad, American Crime, Friday Night Lights). The primary suspect in each episode is played by a guest star, often a recognizable name to faith-based audiences.

Among the guest stars are Emma Elle Roberts (Unplanned, I’m Not Ashamed, Hunger Games: Mockingjay - Part 2), Rachel Hendrix (October Baby, Left Behind: Vanished), Ashley Bratcher (Unplanned, 90 Minutes in Heaven, War Room), Ben Davies (Courageous, OverComer, I’m Not Ashamed, War Room), and Masey McLain (I’m not Ashamed, The Baxters).

I love crime dramas! As a matter of fact, crime dramas like Blue Bloods, NCIS, JAG, and Law & Order are the only TV shows I watch. Even as a kid, I would spend more time watching Matlock, The Rockford Files, Perry Mason, etc. than cartoons. I love the characters in crime dramas. The struggles the police officers face in their duty and how that affects their family, relationships, decisions, perceptions of the world, and ultimately how that builds their character captivates me much more than evidence gathering, car chases, interrogation rooms, or explosions. The characters in crime dramas are what compel me to watch them over and over.

The characters’ development in Vindication is why I can so strongly recommend this series. I was a little skeptical at first that Vindication would be able to develop the characters to the level I have come to expect from the networks. The character development in Vindication far exceeds that of the network crime drama because Vindication adds a dimension that the networks won’t touch—the Spiritual—and does so in realistic, believable, true-to-life ways. In Vindication you see how a veteran calloused police officer’s belief in God is challenged by professional, familial, and personal drama and how hope in God and resting in His providence can truly change the most skeptical of people.

Like many people, I am a fan of musicals, especially the classic Hollywood musicals of the 30’s through the 60’s, but I also enjoy modern musicals.

When filmmakers from the UK approached us asking for help to produce a musical version of the book of Ruth, we jumped at the chance. Ruth: The Musical retells the story of Ruth and Naomi in a timeless setting using drama and several outstanding musical numbers written and performed by Jay Moussa-Mann (who also produced and directed the film). It’s a simple production but beautifully written, shot, and edited.

The Old Testament book of Ruth tells the story of a young Moabite widow living with her mother-in-law, Naomi, in Moab. Ruth and Naomi travel to Canaan (Naomi’s homeland) where Ruth finds work as a farm worker. Ruth faces hostility as a foreigner, but she finds an ally and protector in Boaz, the owner of the farm.

Ruth is a beautiful love story with themes about trust, loyalty, and ultimately God’s faithfulness to save his people, as fulfilled with the coming of the Messiah.

For those who love great music and biblical drama, I highly recommend Ruth: The Musical.
